

For more than 25 years, veterinarian Jeffrey Levy has been traversing the streets of New York City to treat ailing dogs and cats in their home sweet homes.

Whether in a Manhattan high rise, Brooklyn brownstone, downtown hotel, uptown tenement or even a Queens junkyard – Dr. Jeff has helped posh and pampered pets as well as stray castaways – answering the call of pet owners of all stripes – from celebrities, to Wall Street titans, to homeless people.

Join Dr. Levy, acclaimed house call veterinarian, on a delightful, healing safari as he tends to the needs of his animal patients in the Urban Jungle. You'll be introduced to some of the furriest and cuddliest (and sometimes even ferocious) denizens of New York, as well as their fascinating human families.

You will also learn about animal acupuncture, which Dr. Jeff helped introduce to NYC, and has proven to be a panacea for aging and injured pets and those with behavioral disorders; as well as a complement to conventional treatments like surgery, radiation, chemotherapy and prescription medicine.

In the various chapters of the House Call Vet, which all begin with Dr. Jeff's unique pet-centric poetry readers will:

Hear the inside scoop on Stella, the Broadway diva-dog, whose dramatic behind-the-scenes behavior out-do her nightly bow (wows!) on stage

Meet Missy, the frightened fish-out of-water from Mississippi who has to be creatively sedated for a blood test

Greet Pearl, the snarling junkyard dog, who is a menace to the world but comes to show Dr. Jeff her softer side.

These are just a few of the many animal friends you will meet as you travel along with the doctor as he uses his healing powers. In addition to these endearing stories, this veterinarian on-the-go also offers practical tips and tricks as well as insight as to both traditional and alternative treatments. So, for the sake of your Fido or Fluffy, get ready to join Dr. Jeff's pet-set!
